I worked with Isaac Newton at the International Fertilizer Development Center in Accra, Ghana. Isaac was a co-author of my project "Determination of Fertilizer Cost Components and their Effects on Final Fertilizer Prices and the Chain in Ghana". He was the Geographic Information System (GIS) specialist and helped with the geospatial fertilizer price visualization across Ghana. Isaac is a highly skilled data analyst and GIS specialist, he is a team player and has excellent interpersonal skills which make him fun to work with.

I have known Isaac for the past 8 years, He is a talented Programmer, Professional Geospatial Engineer and very detailed-oriented person. He is one of the people had always learned a thing or two each time we have a conversation, we have worked on projects together and he always brings out the very best and ensures the work is executed properly. I will recommend Newton for any project or job on any day or time.

I'm Bouchra DARKAOUI a fresh alumna from UM6P Morocco and I'm an Intern at the IFDC Ghana. It's my absolute pleasure to recommend the IFDC-FERARI GIS specialist Mr. Isaac Newton Kissiedu for any position related to Programming, Geographical analysis, Machine learning...

Mr. Isaac was assisting and training me to manipulate the R-programming, Geostatistical Analysis, and mapping techniques during my master thesis titled "Yield gap analysis of wheat (Triticum aestivum) production in Morocco using a Light-Use-Efficiency Model (LINTUL) and geostatistical approaches".

He has consistently demonstrated an ability to solve any challenge that he faced during my work and I thoroughly enjoyed my time working and learning from him. He works with speed and accuracy! Through his excellent support in my research, I earned the best student research award.

Isaac would be a great asset to any employer given his chemistry of skills. Without any doubts, I strongly recommend Isaac as an excellent fit for any higher degree programs or positions he would pursue in his career.

Isaac Newton Kissiedu is a professional with high qualities. Out of his very busy schedule at IFDC-FERARI, he taught me and my colleagues R Programming during my internship. His support was very helpful for me and he made R coding very easy to understand. I was able to do my regression analysis and created a yield map of rice and soybean using Random Forest machine learning in R, under his supervision. Isaac always strives to beat expectations. His leadership, talent, and composure are very rare to find which makes him a great asset to any employer.

Isaac was my supervisor at IFDC for six months during my master internship. The least I can say is that I was fortunate to work with Isaac. He is an expert in a number of fields such as spatial database, Geospatial analysis, and programming. I have learned a lot of things that I will never forget from Isaac. Besides his expertise, he was a very open minded person, he has the ability to build strong relationships with anyone and that is because he takes the effort to provide assistance and help at any time and under any circumstances. Working with Isaac made a lot of tasks easier for me. Especially when it was about programming and automating LINTUL-1 to simulate the potential yield in Ghana.

I have known Isaac Newton from KNUST as a senior Geomatician and also meet him at University of Ghana as Senior Technician during my Msc. Newton is so adept in GIS. He taught us Database Management and programming and I can assure you that he knows what he's doing. He is also very humble, a great leader, a team player and ready to help make everything you are doing a success. When it comes to GIS, Database Management and programming, I would recommend him to any industry that needs his expertise. He's best at what he does. 😊

Newton Kissiedu is a professional in the disciplines of Database Administration and Geographical Information Systems, and I am happy to strongly recommend him.

During our brief meet at KNUST, where he worked as a teaching assistant, he demonstrated a proclivity for calmness in the classroom, ensuring that students appreciated and comprehended concepts taught under Geomatics Engineering.

I was delighted to meet him again in the professional world, where he possesses advanced practical knowledge and abilities that aid in the resolution of real-world problems, particularly in his present capacity at IFDC.

Isaac Newton Kissiedu is among the best in the field of Geospatial engineering that I have worked with during my time in KNUST, from 2010 to 2014. He is always available to help others in all aspects of computer programming and GIS-related task when needed and strives for excellence while being a valuable team player. His strong knowledge and understanding in the field of Remote sensing, GIS and Geospatial analysis with a wide variety of computer programming languages and applications coupled with years of industry experience make him a valuable member to work with.

He is well focused and delivers quality work and I can easily say "he is one of the best in his field."

I highly recommended him to any employer looking for his service

I'm happy to provide this recommendation for Isaac having briefly worked with him at the International Fertilizer Development Centre.

Isaac is a brilliant and dedicated individual who is passionate about the Geospatial work that he does. He delivers on his responsibility timely while helping coworkers out with a smile on his face. He is respectful, uncontroversial, and strives to maintain a healthy working environment for all.

I will entrust any role Isaac applies for to him knowing well that he will perform excellently in that role.
